Congressional Delay Destroying Business.

CURRENT VALUES.

Further Dulness in Wall Street.

Wednesday, March 18-4 P. M. The further dalliance of Congress upon the financial question produced its natural effect on Wall street to-day, and there was an entire absence of any special interest. Stocks vibrated timorously during the day, operators not knowing exectly which side of the market to take. The following were the highest and lowest prices of

Easier-Pork and Lard Freights Quiet and Easy-Petroleum Easier-Spirits Turpentine Easier-Rosin Active and Firmer-Whiskey

TUESDAY, March 18-6 P. M. Things commercial were quiet to-day, with a tendency in buyers' favor, for many of the leading commodities. At the Produce Exchange business was very light and the markets were quite generally depressed, the most notable exceptions being provisions, which were the turn firmer. Flour remained dull and prices favored the buyer. Wheat was in light supply but with almost no inquiry for eitner milling or export. Prices receded a little, though holders appeared to prefer storing to granting any marked concession. Corn was exceedingly quiet, but there was no pressure to sell, so that prices were unchanged. Oats were dull. Whiskey was easier. Pork and lard moved rather more freely for future delivery, and the market was consequently a shade firmer. Freights were quiet, but without decided change. Groceries were steady, but quiet, excepting for sugar, which met with a good demand at steady prices Cotton was active, both for spot and futures, and better spirits of turpentine was easier, while the market for rosin was active and firmer. Whiskey was quiet and
